WHAT'S NEW IN REFERENCE SOURCES

Andrea Mitchell, Librarian

BIBLIOGRAPHIES:

Kalant, Oriana Josseau et al. Cannabis: Health Risks. A comprehensive annotated bibliography (1844-1982). (Bibliographic Series No. 16) Toronto: Addiction Research Foundation, 1983. $40.00 (Canadian).

This is one of those "must purchase" items for the drug abuse librarian. The wealth of material can not be exaggerated, nor the careful attention to detailed analytics. In total there are 1,719 abstracts which pertain to the adverse effects of cannabis on health. According to the introduction the abstracts are non-evaluative ranging from approximately 100 to 500 words. Over 540 key words in the subject index help the user to locate specific subject areas within the context of adverse effects of Cannabis on health.

Abel, Ernest. Drugs and Sex: A Bibliography. Westport, Connecticut: Greenwood Press, 1983.

The focus of this bibliography is drugs and their effects on sexual behavior. Most of the 1,432 references listed have biomedical sources from journals, conference papers, chapters from edited works, and a few books. While there are some references from the early part of the century and a few even earlier, the greater bulk are from the last twenty years. Foreign titles are translated to make the reader's work easier.

Arrangement of this work is alphabetical by drug or drug class, including alcohol, amphetamines, anti-depressants, antipsychotics, barbiturates, benzodiazepines, caffeine, cocaine, LSD, marihuana, methaqualone, narcotics, nitrites, PCP and tobacco. Within each group, references are listed alphabetically by author. There is a somewhat detailed subject index which helps to find more specific references when needed.

The main criticism of this bibliography is that the author does not give any indication as to what sources were used in the search for these references. Given that so many of the items are from biomedical journals, I would venture to guess that perhaps medline, or index medicus was the main source.

Abel, Ernest. Narcotics and Reproduction: A Bibliography. Westport, Connecticut: Greenwood Press, 1983.

Covering a time period from the early 1900's through 1982 and just short of two thousand references, this bibliography focuses on various aspects of narcotics and their effects on reproduction. Like the bibliography mentioned above, the greater number of citations are from journal articles, with conference proceedings, chapters from edited works, and a few books included as well. Again, there are some foreign language pieces, but all titles are translated. The subject index is the key to unlock the separate entries. If one seeks other bibliographies on the subject, the subject index lists four additional.

While the author makes the claim that this is a comprehensive work, he does not indicate which indexes or databases were searched to cull this material.

FORTHCOMING REFERENCE TITLES

Levinson, David (Editor). A Guide to Alcoholism Treatment Research Vol. III: Alcoholics Anonymous and Counseling. New Haven: Human Relations Area Files Press, 1984. $39.00 prepaid.

From the announcement: "A comprehensive, up to date reference guide to the scientific literature on the effectiveness of Alcoholics Anonymous, Al-Anon, and Counseling." Key conclusions reached through a 12 month review of 134 studies:

- * There is no scientific evidence that Alcoholics Anonymous is more effective than other approaches used in alcoholism treatment. What evidence does exist suggests that A.A. is about as effective as most other approaches.
- * The majority of people who turn to A.A. for help with their abusive drinking drop out of the program before they become meaningfully involved in it. In this regard, A.A. is much like other programs, which also suffer from high drop-out rates.
- * Alcoholics Anonymous seems to be most effective when used for follow-up aftercare by persons who have recently completed an inpatient rehabilitation program.
- * While Alcoholics Anonymous attracts a wide range of people from all walks of life, it is clear that A.A. works for only a minority of alcoholics. Unfortunately, research to date has not yet identified the specific social and psychological characteristics which distinguish those people most likely to benefit from involvement in A.A.

Hours: 9:00 a.m. to 5:00 p.m., Monday to Thursday

Operated by Pacific Institute for Research and Evaluation, the Prevention Research Center was established in November, 1983 as one of the nine National Alcohol Research Centers funded by NIAAA. The Center aims its researches at environmental approaches to the prevention of alcohol-related problems. The projects, now underway, investigate alcohol-related prevention strategies in five specific areas: Server Intervention, Alcohol-Related Traffic Crashes, School Alcohol Policies, Family Model of Prevention, and Alcohol and Mass Media.

The PRC Library started its operations in February, 1984. It plans to provide resources and services to both the Center staff and the prevention field. The Library's collections were planned to build around the subject areas that the Center's researches focus on. And, a program of disseminating the research and methodological findings to the field is being planned. The Library will publish a quarterly newsletter to facilitate the dissemination of the Center's reports and fugitive documents. Libraries interested in receiving a copy of the newsletter (the first issue is scheduled to come out in Fall, 1984) are welcome to send in their names and addresses.

To date, the Library has 58 journals and newsletters, about 350 titles of books and documents in the area of social and cultural aspects of alcohol prevention. As a member of the SALIS network, the Library is willing to provide information services to member libraries in fulfilling the requests of the PRC staff's publications. More services may be provided to members as the Library develops to its full-scale.

David Levinson, Treasurer of SALIS, and current editor of the new publication, A Guide to Alcoholism Treatment Research: Vol. III Alcoholics Anonymous was interviewed on the Sherye Henry Show, WOR Radio, New York, on April 24, 1984. Findings of the above publication were discussed with Charles Shirley of NCA New York. For more on this see Forthcoming Reference Titles in this issue.

AMERICAN ALCOHOL AND DRUG SOCIAL SCIENCE SOCIETIES*

Recent years have seen an increasing pattern of organization of North American alcohol and drug social scientists and epidemiologists into disciplinary groups. Except for the historians, each disciplinary group meets during the annual American meetings of its discipline. Each group sponsors a newsletter -- in the case of the psychologists, it is a full-blown journal. Details of the groups and their publications follow.

Anthropology:

Alcohol and Drug Study Group of the American Anthropological Association. The most recent issue of the quarterly Newsletter (No. 12) includes 14 pages. For membership, including newsletter subscription, send $5 to: Genevieve Ames, Prevention Research Center, Pacific Institute for Research and Evaluation, 2532 Durant Ave., Suite 200, Berkeley CA 94704.

History:

Alcohol and Temperance History Group Newsletter. This newsletter appears about semiannually; No. 8 (Autumn 1983) has 10 legal-size pages. In addition to news and notes about ongoing research, the newsletter specializes in bibliographies on historical topics; for instance, No. 8 includes "a bibliography of Prohibition experiments in the trans-Mississippi West" and a "bibliography of drink and temperance in Ireland". The newsletter is edited by David Fahey, Department of History, Miami University, Oxford, OH 45056; back issues are available at $1 each.

Psychology:

The Bulletin of the Society of Psychologists in Addictive Behaviors is a quarterly journal; the most recent issue (vol. 2, no. 4) has about 50 pages, encompassing 5 articles, news and announcements. Membership in SPAB, including a subscription to the Bulletin, is available to members of the American or Canadian Psychological Associations and to others with appropriate credentials ($15; $5 for students). A subscription to the Bulletin is also $15, payable to: Curtis Barrett, University of Louisville Medical School, P.O. Box 35070, Norton Psychiatric Clinic, Louisville KY 40232.

Public Health:

The Forum on Alcohol and Drug Problems of the American Public Health Association publishes a short newsletter of announcements and news about semi-annually. The Forum's sessions at the APHA emphasize epidemiology, evaluation, prevention and policy. Membership in the Forum is only through membership in the APHA (open to all but not cheap). Current editor of the newsletter is: Richard Bast, NCALI, P.O. Box 2345, Rockville MD 20852. The Forum's current Program Coordinator is: Alexander Wagenaar, Transportation Research Institute, University of Michigan, Ann Arbor, MI 48105.

Sociology:

The Drinking and Drug Division of the Society for the Study of Social Problems (SSSP). The SSSP meets in conjunction with the American Sociological Association. The Drinking and Drugs Division (formerly the Committee on Drinking Behavior, and before that the Committee on Alcoholism) dates back to the 1950s, and in the early days was responsible for such compilations as Pittman and Snyder's Society, Culture and Drinking Patterns and Maddox' The Domesticated Drug. In recent years the semiannual newsletter has been mostly confined to announcements of annual meetings and other divisional business. Membership in the Division is only through membership in the SSSP, which is open to all but not cheap. The current Chair of the Division is: Leonard Blumberg, Department of Sociology, Temple University, Philadelphia PA 19122.

SALIS CONFERENCE, OCTOBER 17 - 19, 1984

Many people challenge - and rightly so - the idea of networking for the sake of networking. While we all exist within networks of friends, acquaintances, and colleagues and utilize these networks for various purposes, this is far different than networking as a tool in accomplishing organizational needs. With that in mind, this year's Sixth Annual SALIS Conference theme is "Networking Is Coming Together." We'll learn what networking is all about, what makes a network effective, and various ways in which a network can communicate. Other conference highlights include:

- ... Multicultural Prevention Issues
- ... Trends of Drug Information -- 1960-Present
- ... Alcohol/Substance Abuse and the Elderly
- ... Alcohol Information: Priorities and Prospects and much more!

Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. on October 17th. At 9:15 a.m. Tom Kirkpatrick, President of NASADAD will deliver our keynote address.

Sarah has been involved in SALIS since its inception in 1978 and has worked in many capacities to strengthen and promote the missions and goals of the organization. She has been a constant source of information for the newsletter, with book and film reviews and pleas to other possible contributors for materials. Sarah created the evaluation questionnaires and wrote up the results for last year's conference even though she was unable to attend. A very special thank-you to her for the dedication and commitment she has given. We hope to see you in October, Sarah.

NIAAA TO MEET SALIS MEMBERS

Terry Freeman, assistant to the Director of Prevention and Research Dissemination, NIAAA is planning to attend the SALIS conference in October to get acquainted with the needs and resources which SALIS members and associates may be able to offer. Ms. Freeman is extremely interested and knowledgeable concerning the problem of alcohol information and should encourage and enliven discussions at the meetings. Ms. Freeman, Ling Hsu, Librarian from the NIAAA Prevention Research Center, Berkeley, and Andrea Mitchell, Librarian, NIAAA Alcohol Research Group, Berkeley, will be presenting a panel discussion on Alcohol Information: Priorities and Prospects. Jane Bemko, founder of SALIS and Librarian from Texas Research Institute of Mental Science will be moderating.

NIAAA RESEARCH MONOGRAPHS

NIAAA has just announced that they have some complimentary Research Monographs to send to all SALIS members. If you are a current member you should be receiving No.'s 5 and 6 of the Research Monograph Series and possibly others depending on their supplies. If you haven't paid 84 membership dues -- please do so now so that your name will be on the "with compliments" list.

NATIVE AMERICANS AND ALCOHOL

The Alcohol Research Group Library has received a gift of the original materials annotated in the Native American alcohol bibliography Tulapai to Tokay. Many of these documents are unpublished/fugitive works and often difficult to locate. Rutgers Center for Alcohol Studies Library is the other holder of this collection. Please make a note of this inside of your copy of Tulapai to Tokay.

CATALOGING BY WORD PROCESSOR

Judith Lubina, Library Assistant
Alcohol Research Group

When I began doing the catalogue cards for the Alcohol Research Group Library, I decided that typing each card was an antiquated process. Additionally, the typed card served only one purpose. I had learned how to set up databases on the Dictaphone word processor, and it occurred to me that this system could serve the library. (A database is a number of records, each record composed of pieces - fields - containing information about the document). In the beginning I had ten fields for each entry with information on the type of document, the author or authors, title, publishing information and, of course, subject areas. Then I added fields to allow me to select a record to be included in our acquisitions list, or a field to summarize all of the subject classifications (this is the newest idea and the one that I look forward to playing with and using to compile bibliographies of our holdings).

The records are stored permanently on floppy discs and I can go back to earlier records to produce more cards or to change entries. Now I can type the information once; and, using the machine, produce the necessary cards and put together the acquisitions list. It makes the material more accessible and the job much easier.

I would really like to hear from those of you who have catalogued materials using your own systems rather than commercial packages about the problems you've encountered, the questions you have and the discoveries you've made. To contact me, write:

FILM REVIEW

Sarah Bull Clarkson

Pregnancy on the Rocks: The Fetal Alcohol Syndrome. Kinetic Film Enterprises, Buffalo, NY, 1981. 16 mm or video; 28 or 58 minute versions.

Drs. Kenneth and Smith while at the University of Washington, Seattle, made the discovery that of eight babies born with prenatal problems, four had similar facial features and the same deformities. Also all four had mothers who drank to excess during their pregnancies. In examining records of other deformed babies the doctors found the same similarities and the shared commonality of mothers who drank during their pregnancies. Since the discovery in 1973, Fetal Alcohol Syndrome (FAS) has been found to be world wide and to cross all socio-economic groups, races and in every geographic location. The film graphically depicts the characteristic facial features that are shared to a lesser or greater degree with all children with FAS. The effect of the film is to leave the features of these unfortunate children indelibly imprinted on the mind.

Research has found that although damage to the child is irreversible, all mothers who drink do not produce babies with FAS. Pregnant women are warned to discontinue drinking completely for it is not known which mothers will produce a FAS child.

The film, without sensationalism and undue emotionalism presents emotional and heartrending scenes of FAS children in such a way that this condition and its cause will be clearly understood by health care professionals and adults contemplating having children.

The SCCADA does not own this film but we recommend its purchase by anyone needing a film on this subject.

BIBLIOGRAPHIES

Hughes, Donald A., Jr. (compiler). "Journal Articles Concerning the Legal Aspects of Alcohol and Alcoholism: 1970 - 1982." North Dakota Law Review, Vol. 59, No. 3, 1983, pp. 509 - 520.

Approximately 200 references concerning public drunkenness, liability of social hosts, dram shops, drunk driving, implied consent, regulations on the industry, and alcoholism as an excuse or blame for criminal involvement. Most of the articles are from law journals, but no information is given as to how the search was done.

Dorn, Nicholas and Nigel South. Message in a Bottle: Theoretical Overview and Annotated Bibliography on the Mass Media and Alcohol. Aldershot, Hants, England: Gower Publishing. 1983. 178 pp.

Approximately 150 pages of this book is devoted to the bibliography compiled from a search of the CAAAL Classified Abstracts Archive of the Alcohol Literature, the Journal of Studies on Alcohol and recent issues of journals in the alcohol and drug field, as well as those media and communication journals and monographs carrying articles on alcohol and the media considered from a social science perspective.

The compilers have given lengthy abstracts to those references deemed "influential, frequently cited or themselves overviews of the field." Others are given summary annotations. A broad classification code has been assigned to many of the references to indicate either a specific focus or important overview. The following are the key areas designated by the authors: Practical Interventions and Programs, Theoretical Approaches, Analysis and Discussion, Review Article of Alcohol and Media Field, Traffic Education Programs with strong mass media element directed at alcohol use, Social and Historical Movements, use of media, propaganda etc. in relation to alcohol.

While this compilation is agreeably a major effort as a bibliography of media and alcohol, it would have been helpful if the authors could have indexed or in some way separated the references having to do with the trade advertising of alcoholic beverages from those having to do with a prevention-education approach or anti-alcohol message and again, from those concerning alcohol as it is portrayed in the literature and T.V. Understandably the theoretical analysis of media uses all of these, but for the researcher or information seeker it would have been a much more useful tool to have attempted at least a general division. The 1984 National Alcoholism Treatment Program Directory. Hollywood, Florida: U.S. Journal (in cooperation with the National Association of Alcoholism Treatment Programs), 1984.

This is a directory of treatment programs/facilities in the U.S. organized in two sections. The first is alphabetical by name of program or facility and gives address, phone and name of contact person. The second section is by geographical location and indicates the following in a grid arrangement: Number of beds, hospital based program or not, free standing facility, inpatient treatment provided, outpatient treatment provided, detoxification services, family services, adolescent services, insurance coverage, accredited by JCAH, member of NAATP. According to the preface, "the National Association of Alcoholism Treatment Programs was founded in 1978 as the only national private sector health care organization solely devoted to issues in alcoholism treatment." Approximately 600 facilities are listed including every state in the U.S. Additionally there is a state by state listing of cities and phone numbers of Alcoholics Anonymous groups. Write to:

Directory of Alcoholism Services. England and Wales. The Comprehensive National Guide. First Edition. London: Federation of Alcoholic Rehabilitation Establishments, 1982 plus erratum 1983. 277 p.

Usually only new reference materials show up in this column; however, this is one exception simply because I've not seen any other directories of treatment centers from England or Wales in recent years. Perhaps if any of you know of a more current one you will write and notify me.

The organization is alphabetical by county and lists the residential facilities and hostels, councils on alcoholism, alcoholism treatment units, psychiatric and general hospital day services, day centers, private facilities, and H.M. services facilities that exist there. For each entry the following information is provided: Address, phone, contact, admission/acceptance (how long it takes), transport (how to get there), service goals, treatment philosophy, eligibility and restrictions, programs, staff, payment, and management. Additional symbols indicate what age groups and sex are allowed, number of beds per room and total, approximate number of days, whether there is detoxification within or elsewhere, etc.

Alcohol Concern: The National Agency on Alcohol Misuse is the new organization replacing the Medical Council on Alcoholism, the National Council on Alcoholism and the Federation of Alcoholic Rehabilitation Establishments. It is hoped that they will be producing a future edition of this directory. Write to:

Detailed tables provide figures for advertising expenditures, total exports of alcoholic beverages, revenues, level of alcohol content for Australian beers, consumption comparisons 1955-56 and 1981-82, and numerous morbidity and mortality data.

This is the third edition of Alcohol in Australia; other editions published 1978 and 1979.

Finland. Oy Alko Ab (The State Alcohol Monopoly) Vuosikirja Arbsbok 1983. (Alcohol Statistics) Helsinki, March 1984.

"DEATH IN THE WEST"

The anti-smoking documentary "Death in the West" is being shown on PBS stations across the United States. It is being used as a launching device for a nationwide smoking prevention school curriculum developed by the Lawrence Hall of Science at the University of California, Berkeley. Tested as a pilot project last May, followup research showed that the curriculum/program:

- reduced children's predisposition to smoke
- increased their awareness of the dangers of smoking and of second hand smoke
- made them conscious of the deviousness of cigarette advertising

List of Publications on American Indians/Alaskan Natives, Asian/Pacific Americans, Blacks and Hispanics Resulting from ADAMHA - Supported Research on Minorities 1972 - 1981. Washington, DC: US Government Printing Office, 1984.

This is a new compendium of ADAMHA-funded research projects and the resulting publications emanating from these projects. The document is organized by minority group and then alphabetically by Principal Investigator's name. Although a name index of grantees and authors is provided, there is no subject index to give access to studies on, for example, alcohol consumption of Blacks, or drug abuse among Chinese Americans. In general, more of the entries pertain to Mental Health than to Alcohol or Drug Use/Abuse; however the publications list does make this a useful tool.

Einstein, Stanley. The Drug User: Personality Issues, Factors, and Theories. An Annotated Bibliography. New York: Plenum, 1983. 208 pp. $75.00.

This is basically a list of 2262 references arranged in three groups: 1) Journal articles, references 1 - 1623; 2) books, book chapters, monographs and dissertations, references 1624 - 2181; and 3) conference papers, references 2182 - 2262. An introduction is provided to give a review of personality theories and related treatment and intervention aspects. No mention is made as to how these references were selected, or which databases were used to retrieve them. In general, the time frame seems to extend from the early 1900's - 1980. Although there were a couple of 1800 plus dates, most of the references were from the 1960's and 1970's and most were English language.

BIOGRAPHY

Lender, Mark Edward. Dictionary of American Temperance Biography: From Temperance Reform to Alcohol Research, the 1600's to the 1980's. Westport, CT: Greenwood Press, 1984. 572 pp. $45.00.

This work comprises a total of 373 biographies of men and women "active in the cause of temperance and efforts against alcoholism." Time period covered is from the 1670's to the 1980's. Each biography is approximately 300 - 1000 words in length and contains the following information: date and place of birth and death, data on education and career, and narrative descriptions of the persons work or connections with the anti-alcohol movements. At the end of each entry, biographical references for further research are provided. Part A lists up to six of the major published works authored by the subject; part B gives secondary sources. Two additional appendices provide an alphabetical listing of temperance leaders by states or countries of birth, and by religious affiliation. An index allows for further accessibility to persons named, important publications of the period and relevant organizations.

DIRECTORIES

HIGHLIGHTS

FROM THE SALIS 6th ANNUAL CONFERENCE

Encouragement and accomplishment marked the 6th Annual Conference of Substance Abuse Librarians and Information Specialists. This year's meeting opened with a key note from Tom Kirkpatrick, President of NASADAD, and also welcomed two speakers from the NIAAA and one from NCALI. NIAAA's Terry Freeman, Special Assistant to Robert Denniston, Director of the Prevention and Research Dissemination Division, presented the recommendations of the external ad hoc group on NCALI database issues regarding the scope, content, and accessibility of the NCALI alcohol database (see Alcohol Database in this issue).

Sean O'Rourke, NIAAA Project Officer of NCALI, detailed the plans of NCALI and future projects with many references to SALIS as part of the information process. Dick Bast of NCALI presented an overview of the database including history and current issues.

Other presenters included:

Viesta Morris and Shellie Coleman, AHTDS Prevention Resource Center

"Findings of a Review of Prevention Literature and Audiovisuals for Black and Hispanic Populations"

Vicki Dunn, Iowa Substance Abuse Information Center
Drug Abuse Trends: 1960 -- Present"

Karen Roe, DePaul Rehabilitation Hospital

"Alcoholism and the Elderly"

Virginia Rolett, Dartmouth Medical School

"Adventures of an Information Specialist in Copenhagen: The World Health Organization and Other Scandinavian Sources"

Ling Hsu, Prevention Research Center

"The Need for Controlled Vocabulary in NCALI's Alcohol Literature Database"

Andrea Mitchell, Alcohol Research Group

Notes from the business meeting:

-- There will be an increase in the subscription to SALIS News beginning January, 1984: $10.00/year for the U.S., Canada and Mexico, $12.00/year for all others.

-- There will be an increase in the Associate membership dues to $10.00

-- Due to the number of requests for the SALIS mailing list, it was decided to look into ways of selling it, possibly through a broker. ATTENTION: If you do not want your name on such a list, please notify the SALIS News editor.

-- An ad for the SALIS Directory is in the October issue of Bulletin of the Medical Library Association.

Minutes of the business meeting are available from the new secretary, Nancy Sutherland, Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Institute, University of Washington, 3937 15th Avenue N.E., Seattle, WA 98105.

LETTER TO ADAMHA

Penny Page, SALIS Chair, has written the Director of ADAMHA, Ian MacDonald, to express the SALIS association's concern about the merger of the NIDA Resource Center Collection with that of another library housed in the Parklawn Building. The following points were outlined in the letter:

- 1) Reference service would be weakened if provided by librarians or other staff members not solely concerned with drug abuse and therefore not as familiar with the subject materials.
- 2) Interlibrary loan service, which provides access to many of the items in the collection, would be threatened. Presently no incoming requests are being handled.
- 3) The acquisitions list would be threatened. It is currently not being published due to staff shortages.
- 4) The change of drug abuse material from a discrete collection to part of a larger library would have a negative impact on selection of materials. It is unlikely, for example, that a larger library (without a significant increase in staff) would be able to concern itself with the identification and acquisition of fugitive materials, even though a significant number of drug abuse publications are of this nature. The acquisition and retention of some journals which are critical in the drug abuse field yet are not frequently used would also be adversely affected. Selection of materials in general would suffer if the acquisition librarian were not a specialist in the drug abuse field.
- 5) Less frequently used books and books of an archival nature would be moved to the Addiction Research Center in Baltimore and/or eliminated from the collection, weakening the effectiveness of the collection and destroying its uniqueness.

If you would like a copy of this letter for your files, contact Penny Page, Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies Library, Smithers Hall, Busch Campus, Piscataway, NJ 08854.

ALCOHOL DATABASE

NIAAA's Division of Prevention and Research Dissemination has been recently concerned with issues related to the alcohol database of the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information. In September 27-28, an external ad hoc group of ten persons (including four SALIS members) and representatives from NCALI and NIAAA met in Rockville, Maryland to discuss these issues with a central focus on database scope, content and accessibility. A summary of the meeting and recommendations made by the group to NIAAA regarding the NCALI database are in draft form at this writing but are available on request from Terry Freeman. The final recommendations will be printed in the next issue of SALIS News. This will be of great importance to SALIS and all information persons who deal with alcohol questions/information. Contact:

NCALI USER BOARD

A board of members who regularly use the services of the National Clearinghouse for Alcohol Information will meet in Rockville, Maryland, December 4-5, to discuss needs of constituency, resources available, and ways to improve information exchange. WHAT'S NEW IN REFERENCE SOURCES

Andrea Mitchell, Information Specialist
Alcohol Research Group

Gartner, Leslie. Alcohol and Pregnancy: A Retrieval Index and Bibliography of the Fetal Alcohol Syndrome. Reistertown, MD: JenHouse Publishing, 1984. $35.00.

Perhaps if there weren't other bibliographies on this topic, it would be easier to give merit to this work. However, with the National Library of Medicine's published free bibliography, "Maternal Alcohol Consumption and Fetal and Newborn Effects, Including the Fetal Alcohol Syndrome," 1983, Nancy Sutherland's Alcoholism and Drug Abuse Institute, University of Washington, "Alcohol and Pregnancy: Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, Drinking During Pregnancy and Effects on Offspring: A Bibliography, 1981," and Ernest Abel's two bibliographies, Alcohol and Reproduction, 1982 and Fetal Alcohol Syndrome, 1981, it is difficult to make any sense out of paying $35.00 for a paperback listing 300 unannotated references. Basically that's what you get in this document.

Actually the work is divided into two sections. The second section is made up of approximately 300 references drawn from sources unmentioned. They include a few books, many journal articles and some dissertations and theses ranging from years 1899 -- 1984. Actually there are less than five references dated 83 - 84. Many -- perhaps fifty percent -- concern animal research. The first section is an alphabetical listing of key words from the titles of the references given. This "retrieval index" or listing of terms then refers one back to the references. This is a method which does save search time and gets to specific topic areas readily; however, both of Abel's works have subject classifications and in depth index terms and include many more references.

Abel, Ernest. A Dictionary of Drug Abuse Terms and Terminology. Westport, CT: Greenwood Press, 1984. ($29.95).

Approximately 3,000 drug terms or expressions are defined with a brief phrase or one to three sentence descriptions. Most terms relating to alcohol and tobacco have been omitted because according to the author, there are "thousands (of these terms) and inclusion of some and not others would be completely arbitrary." Fortunately, alcohol terms have been the subject of an excellent dictionary by Mark Keller, entitled, A Dictionary of Words about Alcohol, 1982.

Abel's book does not give dates for most of the words, probably since most are street language terms and difficult to ascertain when they were first used. There is a glossary in the back which rearranges or cross references some of the terms already defined in the core of the book. Here one can look up the drug name (i.e., LSD) and get all of the slang terms which refer to that drug. Under LSD in the core section, one gets a definition including the properties, effects, discovery date, reactions and how it is classified according to the Controlled Substances Act. A three page bibliography is also included.

A useful reference tool for librarians, and professionals whose work is concerned with drug use and abuse.

Sanchez, David, Compiler. "NIAAA Quick Facts". Rockville, Maryland. August, 1984.

Extremely valuable collection of statistics on almost everything you get asked about concerning alcohol related problems. Drawn from numerous sources, it includes "facts" or "stats" on prevalence, effects, consequences, mortality, morbidity, accidents, consumption, treatment, prevention, funding, tax revenues from alcoholic beverages, licensure and accreditation, and more. A very handy reference document of 100 pages including an index. Updates will be forthcoming.

BOOK REVIEW

Christine Vourakis
Doctoral Fellow
Alcohol Research Group
University of California Berkeley

Levinson, David. A Guide to Alcoholism Treatment Research: Volume III Alcoholics Anonymous and Counseling. New Haven, CT: HRAF Press, 1983.

Levinson's Guide is a valuable resource both for the researcher and clinician. Its format differs from the narrative style of most literature reviews posing some difficulty at first. However, once the reader is acquainted with the Guide's contents and format, any of the 134 studies reviewed therein may be readily scanned for specific information.

The Guide is divided into four parts. Part I contains an overview, a description of the contents including the 45 items used to outline the profiles and an explanation on how to use the Guide. The author also shares the sources used in obtaining the bibliography for his review and the extent of his rigor in generating the coding scheme for profiling the studies. He further offers support for the reliability of the information drawn from the research reports.

Part II is a narrative summary of the findings reported in the profiles. The author concludes his reviews with comments on the nature and value of the findings and suggests areas where further research is needed. In Part III there are four indexes: (1) Main Subject, (2) Variable, (3) Measurement Instrument and (4) Author. These indexes allow the reader to look up specific studies by author or topic. Part IV contains a key to the profile items and the 225 profiles. Each profile presents an account of a finding from the research reports.

Levinson's Guide offers a systematic review plan where the properties common to most research studies are used as the format for each review. The quality of some aspects of the reports are easily assessed since the same standard is used for obtaining information. This is most apparent in the area of methodology. A number of items are included which address, in specific detail, design and methods. At times though, the reader may want more information included under an item. For instance, one of the items concerns itself with the sample. In reviewing the profiles on reports of Alcoholics Anonymous (AA) groups it is at times not known how many groups were visited for the purpose of obtaining a sample or exactly how the researcher went about choosing a group. Perhaps the reader should refer to the actual study if an in depth examination of methodology is desired.

The bibliography, compiled by Levinson, appears to be fairly comprehensive particularly in the area of AA research reports, of which this writer is most familiar. It was noted though that Levinson did not include Dissertation Abstracts as one of his sources. One dissertation obtained from a search of this source, A Comparative Study of Self-Actualization of Female Alcoholics in Alcoholics Anonymous by Lola Janet Williams (1980), appears to be a relevant report for inclusion in his bibliography. Levinson does admit that he may have missed 10% of the pertinent reports.

There are a few other points about the Guide which may be of interest to the reader. First of all, the beginning user must carefully read the first three parts of the guide to adequately understand the profiles and how to make use of the information therein. For example, there are 134 reports and 225 profiles addressing the findings. The reader who does not read the introductory material may be confused by the same study profiled more than once.

The task of learning how to use the guide requires effort that could be minimized by consolidation of some of the content; e.g., descriptions of the items are in two areas with one set of explanations being more elaborate than the other. The profiles themselves are in columns without indentation. Indenting the item titles and/or using bold print would enhance the readability of each profile and more clearly separate the structure from the content.

Overall, the Guide offers the reader a handy reference to the state of knowledge regarding the effectiveness and usefulness of these two treatment approaches. Its four indexes and detailed item information present opportunities for a variety of reviews as well as potentially viable areas for research.

FILM REVIEW

Sarah Bull Clarkson
Columbia, South Carolina.

"How to Sabotage Your Treatment." Gerald T. Rogers Productions, Inc., 5225 Old Orchard Road, Suite 6, Skokie, Illinois 60077. 1982, 3/4" video, 16 mm film.

"How to Sabotage Your Treatment" uses for a setting a New Year's Eve reunion party of graduates of an alcoholism treatment facility. The party is a celebration of recovery. All in attendance, excepting the counselors, have achieved recovery by recognizing and overcoming various roadblocks of their own design. The counselors and each guest in turn discuss strategies used by the alcoholic to sabotage his or her treatment. Each individual's roadblock to recovery is visualized in flashback vignettes which dramatize attitudes such as self pity, de-focusing, negotiating (thus avoiding the real issue), compliance in word only, irresponsibility and delusion. The family enabler is also present as depicted by a mother attempting to get her daughter out of treatment before recovery is complete.

The primary value of the film appears to be as an aid to the patient in treatment in recognizing problems he or she might be constructing in the way of recovery. Although a wide range of problems are depicted, no attempt is made to delve into the cause or treatment strategies for each problem, except through self realization and recognition by fellow patients of the strategies being used to avoid that self realization. There should be value to the patient in knowing that whatever form of delusion that exists in his mind that same delusion or avoidance of truth has been tried many times or, in other words, "everyone else has already been there." The value of the film to the counselor would be in assisting patients to self recognition and in promoting discussion of problems as they might relate to the patient.

A pamphlet by the same title is available for the patient from the distributor (50¢). It is designed in the "scriptographic" format to be used with the film as an introduction to treatment and as an aid to the recognition of roadblocks that people often construct to sabotage their own recovery.

The film is recommended for treatment settings for those suffering from alcoholism and would be especially useful in the introductory stages of treatment. The party setting is a realistic depiction of the camaraderie and genuine joy felt by recovering alcoholics. A patient recently entered into treatment should derive hope for his recovery and a sense that there will be a life to look forward to from watching "How to Sabotage Your Treatment."

LETTER FROM MACDONALD

In the last issue of SALIS News, the letter sent to Donald MacDonald from chair Penny Page was summarised. She received a reply from him mid November which contained the following points.

First he assured that the efforts to consolidate the NIMH and NIDA with the Parklawn Health Library would not result in a reduction of services or decreased interest in acquiring materials or maintaining the collection. The NIDA and NIMH have been asked to prepare a detailed list of their service and maintenance requirements that the consolidated library would agree to perform.

He stated that this effort would be cost effective by eliminating duplication of serials and other acquisitions, and further would reestablish some services that had been discontinued because of reduced staff resources.

If any of you want a copy of the letter for your file, write to Penny Page at Rutgers Center for Alcohol Studies Library.

Additionally, let's try to keep each other informed of the response and services of the new consolidated library.

MORE ON THE ALCOHOL DATABASE

The following are the recommendations of the external ad hoc group which met late September to discuss issues concerning the on-line alcohol database of the NCALI. At this time NIAAA is prioritizing these recommendations and making plans for further investigations and implementation. If you would like to comment on any of these please write to:

Division of Prevention and Research Dissemination

RECOMMENDATIONS OF THE EXTERNAL AD HOC GROUP ON NCALI DATABASE ISSUES

September, 1984.

Two of the recommendations were treated as core assumptions upon which all others are based:

- NCALI (as a whole) should continue its current policy of serving anyone seeking alcohol information (ranging from the general public to the scientific community).
- NCALI should develop and maintain systematic channels of communication between itself and others (nationally and internationally) such as the states, the NIAAA Research Centers, members of Substance Abuse Librarians and Information Specialists (SALIS) and medical school librarians.

Recommendations ranked in order of priority:

1. Develop and maintain a comprehensive online alcohol data base rather than rely solely on other data bases such as MEDLINE, PSYCHINFO, etc.
2. Develop, publish, and distribute the criteria for acquisition of materials. This task will necessitate, inherently, a review of the scope and content of the NCALI data base. During this review it was suggested that special attention be given to expanding coverage of three areas:
 - The psychosocial literature as it relates to alcohol.
 - Statistical data — it was recommended that these data be available from the NCALI data base and that NIAAA look into better coordination with DBE (the AEDS data base) and others in the Institute.
 - Policy statements made by the President, members of Congress, top level personnel in NIAAA, and others.
3. Develop, publish, and distribute a thesaurus:
 - Incorporate the terminology used by other groups (e.g., NIOSH, the National Safety Council, the National Council on Alcoholism) to facilitate compatibility among data bases and document collections maintained by others in the field. (Build on the subject expertise of individuals in other fields and organizations.)
 - Provide for possible future expansion of the thesaurus to include drugs and other substances should the NIDA, NIMH, and NIAAA data bases ever be combined.
 - Provide training for other indexers and searchers on how to use the thesaurus.
 - Provide for systematic review of the thesaurus by SALIS, state clearinghouses, and others to ensure that it is timely and incorporates terminology required by others in the field. Periodic review was recommended, in recognition of a thesaurus as a living document subject to constant alteration and expansion as the alcohol field itself changes and confronts new issues.

- 4A. Conduct a feasibility study to determine the value of the NCALI data base (e.g., comprehensiveness of scope, quality and timeliness of content) and the benefits of professional user access, and to resolve potential problems associated with it (e.g., difficulties with indexing terminology). During the study, the NCALI data base should be made available online to a limited number of priority users (e.g., SALIS, NIAAA Research Centers, state clearinghouses).

Withhold general access to the online data base until the feasibility study is concluded. It was pointed out that if NIAAA were to give access to all or most SALIS members, it would be reaching a wide range of users such as NIAAA Research Centers, state clearinghouses, and medical schools.

- 4B. Concurrent to the feasibility study, explore the possibility of having the National Library of Medicine and other data base developers enhance coverage of the alcohol literature in their respective data bases (MEDLINE, PSYCHINFO, etc.) because some people will continue to access these data bases alone even if NCALI develops a comprehensive, accessible data base.
- 4C. Investigate the possibilities of cooperating with NIDA and NIMH to develop a combined ADAMHA data base.
5. Make the data base available through a public vendor after completion of the feasibility study assuming the study indicates that the data base is of such quality (e.g., comprehensive, well-indexed, current) to warrant implementing public access.
6. Engage in more outreach and marketing at state and other meetings, and consider taking a terminal to demonstrate searches of the NCALI data base to meeting attendees. After the feasibility study, conduct a major marketing effort to promote NCALI's services and renewed image.
7. After completion of the feasibility study, consider a cost recovery plan for data base searches using a sliding fee scale.
8. Maintain an online file for public use containing nonscientific but valuable articles and other materials from a variety of sources.
 - Continue to generate products based upon this data base for distribution to the general public.

FILM INFORMATION: HOW TO FIND

Lynn Tolcott and Cindy Scott
Wisconsin Clearinghouse

Madison, WI 53704

Rather than giving film reviews in this issue of SALIS News, we are providing you with a list of places where you can find these reviews or films for yourselves. The purpose of this list is to give you an idea of resources for finding reviews, as well as actual producers and distributors of alcohol and other drug films. We also included some miscellaneous sources of such films. If you know of any other sources of films or reviews, please let us know. There will be additional resources provided in future issues of SALIS News.

A. Review Publications / Journals / Newsletters

1. Addiction Research Foundation (ARF)

33 Russell Street
Toronto, Ontario M5S 2S1 Canada

An excellent group involved in all aspects of substance abuse research and information dissemination. For film reviews, they put out the following two publications:

The Journal -- a monthly journal containing research outcomes, general AODA news, and some film reviews (3 - 4 per issue). Reviews are shortened versions of ARF's excellent film review publication, Projections. $16.00 per year.

Projections -- a monthly review of AODA films. Contains 6 reviews per issue. Each review gives title, subject heading, year, producer and distributor addresses, cost, length and format, synopsis, accuracy, general evaluation, and recommended use. Subject and title indices published regularly. $12.00 per year.

2. National Center for Health Education

30 E. 29 Street
New York, NY 10016
(212) 689-1886

This group has two publications:

Center -- a journal published 5 times per year, $40.00 per year. It includes reviews of films and publications in the general health education area, including drugs and alcohol.

Education for Health: Selective Guide -- $70.00 (members of NCHE); $90.00 (non-members); available in paperback in January 1985, $69.00. Compilation of film and publication reviews in health education, including AODA, through 1983. Updated every three years. Word is that this may be available by topic, i.e., alcohol and other drugs, in 1985.

3. Prevention Branch

National Institute on Drug Abuse
Room 10A-30
5600 Fishers Lane
Rockville, MD 20857

Prevention Resources -- Publication with news in/about the field of prevention. Reviews resources, including 2 - 3 films, in each issue. Quarterly, free.

4. Wisconsin Clearinghouse

1954 E. Washington Ave.
Madison, WI 53704

Resource Reviews: Alcohol and Other Drugs 1979 - 1983 -- Compilation of all film and literature reviews that were published in the now defunct Critiques. Reviews include title, subject area, year, distributor address, cost, length and format, synopsis, evaluation, overall rating, intended audience, production quality, and recommended use. $11.50 (includes shipping and handling).

5. Voice of Youth Advocates, Inc.

PO Box 6569
University, AL 35486

Voice of Youth Advocates -- Excellent publication aimed at young adult librarians, but also has wider appeal. Reviews numerous resources, including audio-visuals. Of the 6 or so A-V's reviewed per issue, one is often alcohol and other drug related. $20.00 per year, monthly.

Note: Often State Prevention Networks put out newsletters containing film reviews. Check your state alcohol/drug agency.

B. Film Producers and Distributors

On page 5 is a list of film producers and distributors. You can write to them and get on their mailing list, and they will send you catalogs and promotional literature announcing new films. Some of these companies may offer free previews or rentals (e.g., Modern Talking Pictures).

C. Miscellaneous Sources

The following are other sources which often carry drug and alcohol films:

University libraries, audio-visual centers, and extension services

March of Dimes -- local and state level offices

State departments of transportation

State drug and alcohol agencies

Public television stations (occasionally produce and/or distribute films)

Public libraries

Local (county and city) alcohol councils

State prevention coordinators
